AMERICA'S MELTING POT IS BOILING OVER.

Millions of illegals strain an overburdened system. Crime rates skyrocket. From the Valley of the Sun to the halls of Congress, debate rages. All the while, murder and mayhem reign along the U.S.-Mexico border. Speaking into the fray at a timely juncture, radio talk-show host Darrell Ankarlo delivers a gripping, beyond-the-headlines look at illegal immigration: its victims, its perpetrators, and its toll on the heart of a nation and the will of her law-abiding citizens. From the hot-button state of Arizona, Ankarlo dared venture to the epicenter of the battle for America's southern border.

Now he dares you to absorb the heartbreaking stories and eye-opening discoveries he brought back from his undercover journey without finding yourself shaken, inspired... and compelled to act.

Endorsements:

"Instead of complaining about the "border problem," Darrel Ankarlo set out to do something about it—he went there and lived it! In Illegals, Darrell provides a real and raw 'boots on the ground' look at our increasingly lawless southern border. This edition . . . will make you shake your head and say 'no way' as you're presented with true stories and experiences about life along the border. This book will enlighten you and at times frighten you, but in the end you'll know better than most politicians what's really happening at the border." —GLENN BECK
